Discovering ourselves and others through the exploration of languages, literatures, and cultures.

With a commitment to innovative teaching, engaged research, and meaningful engagement with communities local and afar, the Department of Languages, Literatures, and Cultures prepares students for a variety of professions and areas of advanced studies where knowledge of modern world languages and skills in intercultural competence and critical thinking are essential. To these ends, LLC offers 2 major-level programs: "Languages, Literatures, and Cultures" (with concentrations in French and Francophone Studies, German Studies, Global Languages and Communities, and Applied Languages/K-12 Licensure for French or Spanish) and "Spanish." In addition, LLC offers minors in American Sign Language, Chinese, French, German, Russian, and Spanish; and, starting fall 2023, students seeking credentials for academic, professional, or personal purposes may pursue a pre-baccalaureate certificate in "Languages and Cultures for the Professions," "Applied Communication in Spanish," "Spanish for Healthcare," "Japanese Language and Culture," or "Russian Language and Culture."
