Ashby Residential College
What is a Residential College?

UNCG’s Residential Colleges (RCs) provide a small college experience within a large university setting, with the advantages of both available to students. Ashby is one of the three RCs available on campus.
Residence Hall + Classes = RC

• In the RCs, you live and take classes in a residence hall with faculty who work (and in some cases live) in the residence hall, too.
• This provides a way for you to get to know faculty and for faculty to get to know you, encouraging intellectual and social growth.
• With a curriculum of classes that meets General Education requirements, each Residential College has a distinctive curricular focus with its own set of Core courses taught in the residence hall by RC faculty.
Why Ashby Residential College?

• Established in 1970, Ashby is the oldest Residential College at UNCG and in North Carolina.
• You will be part of a small community of 120 students, where you get to know your peers and the faculty who teach in the program
• Small classes of 20-25 students, taught in Mary Foust Residence Hall near the Caf, the library, and the Elliot Union Center
• Unique courses that meet gen ed requirements and that help you explore social justice and contemporary media literacies
• Study rooms equipped with media technology and a print station
• Dedicated faculty committed to working closely with you as an Ashby student
• In-house academic advising
• A faculty-in-residence who oversees Mary Foust Residence Hall
• Signature projects and social events
How to Apply

• Ashby usually fills its spaces by June 15.
• But, plans change! There are always small adjustments as the summer wears on.
• Apply by logging into your SpartanLink Account and answering yes to the “Are you interested in applying to a residential college?”
• You will hear back from us soon!
