All majors in the College of Arts and Sciences (except for the Interior Architecture (BFA) major) include a requirement for learning an additional language beyond English through the second intermediate (204) level. For more information about why learning an additional language is important, please click here.

At UNC Greensboro, we offer 11 different languages:

If you wish to start a new language that you’ve never studied before, that’s great! Just talk to your advisor about registering for the 101 section of the language you’re most interested in. You do not need to take a diagnostic for a language you have never studied or spoken.

If you have previously studied any of these languages and wish to continue, you will need to take an Additional Language Diagnostic.

To take the Diagnostic for Spanish, French, German, Chinese, or Russian, follow these steps:
- Access the Additional Language Diagnostic
- set up an account using your new UNCG student ID number, an email address (preferably your UNCG email), and a password of your choosing.
- Select the language you plan to study
- complete the pre-test survey
- begin the test

This test can only be taken once every 6 months, so do your best. The score you receive is good for 1 year.

To take the diagnostic for Latin, follow these steps:
- Visit https://classics.uncg.edu/academics/latin-placement-2020-2021/
- Read through information on page, then scroll to the bottom and click “Registration for Latin Placement Evaluation”
- Login to Canvas using your iSpartan login information
- Click Enroll
- Take the test

To take a diagnostic for American Sign Language, Ancient Greek, Arabic, Japanese, or Korean, please contact casa@uncg.edu so we can connect you with the appropriate professor in the Languages, Literatures and Cultures or Classical Studies departments.

If you are fluent in another language not listed here, you may be able to place out of the language requirement. For more information, please contact Ms. Dodie Booton (debooton@uncg.edu).
